

Laurie's Drivel Column

Time once again for an installment of mindless dither. First, apologies for the poor photo reproduction in the last Rag! The printer has been dismissed.

Thanks to all you drivel-readers who wrote in responding to the last Rag's column. I enjoy hearing from you all! (Kay here - Actually, she enjoys hearing from anyone who conversationally can handle more than three syllables at a time and who doesn't drool to show pleasure/displeasure. Oh, but that does tend to eliminate some of our more advanced model enthusiasts, doesn't it....) Laura Doll, of Winter Park, Florida (A contradiction in terms, I would say...) writes:

"I love your "drivel" column! A lot of times I've thought of writing -- but when you mentioned front yard decorations, I HAD to send this! Enclosed is a photo of "Flaky the Snowman," who is located in someone's front yard in Kentucky. I almost screamed when I first saw it." Well, Laura, I DID scream when I saw the picture....

On the back of the postcard Brenda sent, there are several local attractions listed, one of which is "Oyster Museum." Kay do NOT neglect to visit that famous monument to the "Queen of Bivalves."

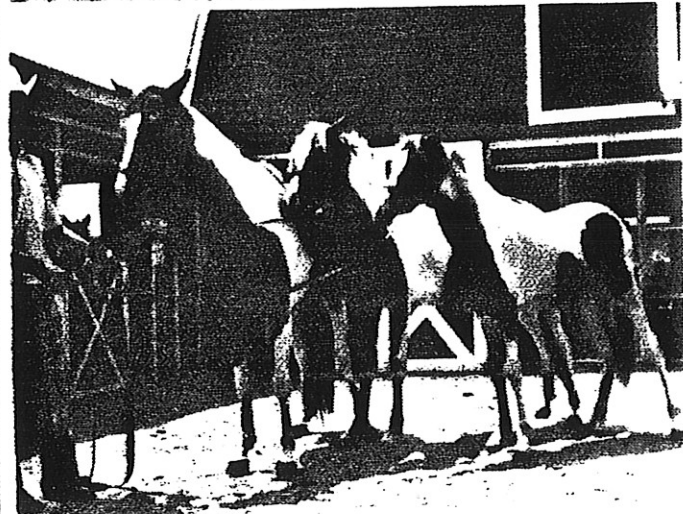

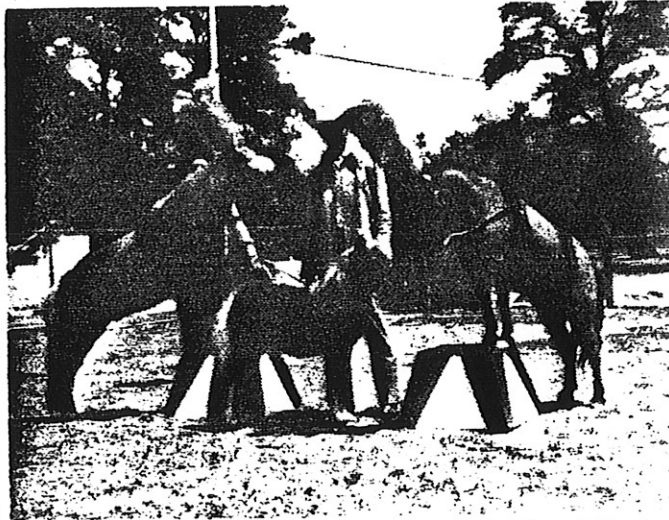

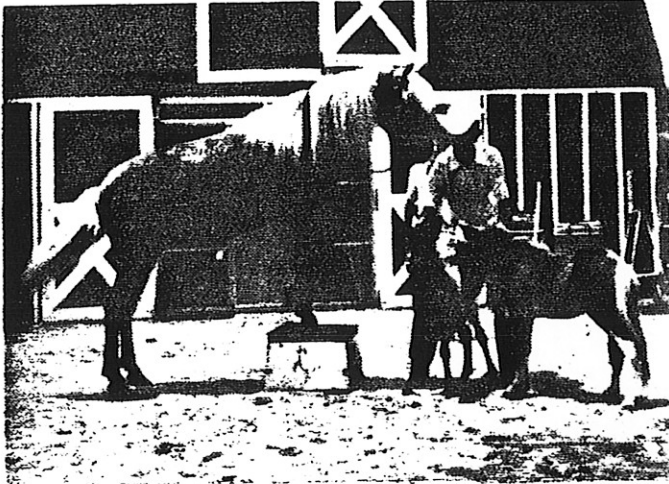

Laura also says that she's glad she's 21 and can handle the emotional aspect of knowing that they stuffed Misty of Chincoteague. She asks, "Couldn't that (seeing Misty stuffed) traumatize a child?" Well, sounds to me like seeing the pathetic pinto, sleazily stuffed into a tumbledown trailer would traumatize most of us over 21. Yish!

Brenda Harris of Redwood City, California actually sent us some photos of her vacation in Chincoteague as well as a postcard (see next page):

and "Erin." This is confusing to collectors -

Chincoteague Miniature Pony Farm
"World's Most Unusual Horses"
Chincoteague, Virginia

(Say...oysters are mollusks, JUST LIKE SLUGS!!) AND speaking of slugs...(Oh...I didn't realize WE were!) ...I hope you, Kay, have the photo ready of your pet slug. (Yes, Laurie, I do. As a matter of fact...it's on the cover this issue! So, "NYAH" to those of you who thought we couldn't top the photo of Heather and the deviled eggs! I've titled this one, "SLUG OVER FENCES." Although, having read Laurie's article on Jumpers vs Hunters, I truly feel that he may, in fact, be better suited to hunting...) What's his name, anyway? (His name is Louis. Louis of Louisville. Get it? "LOUISVILLE SLUG-er!!") Please print his photo so we can all have fits of envy. (Of course, you know me, I have fits of envy over most of Kay's possessions. Except her dogs, who bring home parts of large, decaying road kills as presents...After they've rolled in the stinky remains, of course.) (Actually, they seem to have recovered from that pastime lately. As I sit here, I note that my two pups have just trotted past the window carrying an empty gallon milk jug and a rusty tin can to the Sacred Labrador Playground...SIGH)

Seems that Mair Dodd keeps abreast (of what?) of slug-related newsbits and sent me this clipping from her paper:

Banana slugs honored

REDWOOD CITY, Calif. (UPI) — California has an official state tree, flower, reptile, bird, insect, animal and marine mammal, but a lawmaker wants to add one more to the list — official state mollusk.

Assemblyman Byron Sher, a Mountain View Democrat, is lobbying on behalf of the lowly, forest-dwelling banana slug. On Friday, he and the slimy slugs got a show of support from 400 children at Hawes Elementary School.

Most of the kids wore yellow outfits and costumes for Banana Slug Day, which attracted a band and officials from the University of California at Santa Cruz.

(Notice that the city listed in the clipping is RED WOOD CITY. O.K., Brenda! Are you a closet pro-slug activists? We have no secrets here. (We have no TASTE here...) Fess up!) Anyway, Mair asks: "Did you know that July 1-7 is NATIONAL SLUG WEEK? Yes, folks, this is the time when our slimy little friends make their pilgrimage to our lush green gardens and proceed to make gluttons of themselves on the precious baby plants we raised from seed." Mair's a good sport, though. She says she leaves a nice big bowl of beer out for "The guys" to quench thirst, or sometimes she "treats" them to a quick salt bath to calm their nerves. What'a gal, Mair!! Mair urges us all to join her in her "salute to slugs everywhere! Hurrah for Mom, apple pie, and slugs!" Perhaps Ms. Dodd should move to Redwood City!?

(Kay here - I received a note from Fara O'Sullivan, who lives in Oregon. She said that "...My Pet Slugs' are manufactured in OREGON, and also sold in 'Made In Oregon' stores. I would imagine that North Westerners all over are making them!" Anyway, my apologies to those of you scouring the state of Washington, looking for a factory tour of the "My Pet Slug" Production Plant...

I also got a letter from Dotty Van Vogt, who lives in Pomeroy, WA. She writes, "By the way, Eastern Washington has almost no slugs....instead we have our own problems 'pets'...like grasshoppers and sagebugs!" There, you see? We have found a market niche! TMR should start producing "MY PET SAGEBUG!" We'd clean up!

Oh - before Laurie throws too much a fit because I'm hogging her column - in answer to those of you who asked - yes, people ASKED! - I work for Sullivan Payne Co., a reinsurance intermediary who's home office is located in the Century Square Building in downtown Seattle on 4th. But you all would have guessed that...)

In addition, Laura Doll says she's never owned a pet slug but she did own a caterpillar once. His name was Percy. (Uh, oh - his name WAS Percy - I sense an unhappy ending here!) Says Laura, "We kept him in a jelly jar...One day he wasn't moving so we gave him a proper burial...but you how children are (me: yes, I do) and we DUG HIM UP the next day and he was GONE!!! EEEK!... 'Caterpillar of the Living Dead'?" (Me: I can see the movie marquee's reading, "Percy's Revenge" or "Cocoon II...The Final Pupation" or "The Crawling Terror." (How about, "Nightmare In Elm Tree"...)

One last "slug goodie" comes from the Orange County Register newspaper where an article on making the banana slug California's Official State Mollusk features this poem:

ODE TO THE SLUG

Which will make you sicker?

A Slug,

Or a slimy poliricker.

Oh, banana slug, we can't wait

Until you're the official mollusk of the State.

-The Dynamite Blue Bird Troop of Redwood City-

The article goes on to say that for a while it looked as though the bull (Oops - Typo! Tee hee!) BILL was headed for the trash heap - which probably would have been fine with the slugs. Committee Chairman, Dick Floyd came to the hearing with a box of slug bait. Assemblyman Ross Johnson was ready to pour salt on the whole idea, saying, "I've personally enjoyed about as much of this as I can stand."

Well, I'm sure all you readers are feeling the same way just about now. (So are the writers...) So onward with FROG DRIVEL! (We seem to be preoccupied with lower lifeforms, don't we??) (Understandably...)

We had two BRAVE entrants to the "Name the Frogs (and Turtle) Contest." And now, the moment you've all been waiting for...THE WINNERS!

MS. SHIRLEY WYATT, Riverside, CA

MS. MAIR DODD, Eureka, CA!

Here are the names chosen for the frogs:

Bongo Bob Bullfrog - S.W.

Buford Bullfrog - M.D.

Butch Bullfrog - M.D.

Heda Harp Hopper - S.W.

Ben Bullfrog (Named after "you know you" Breyer) - M.D.

Terrence "The Terd" Wellington III - S.W.

Frederico Los Frogos - S.W.

Inga Toad (One of those Swedish Frogs) - S.W.

and-

Bob The Turtle - M.D.

Yay! Both Shirley and Mair will receive cheap and disgusting prizes as soon as I make them!! (Bet they can't wait!) (Lucky girls...)

I hear that Jean Lindgren of Hollywood has a mother who has a pond which has frogs. (How novel!) She has offered to send some for me to stuff. Gee THANKS, Jean, but since I've become "in the family way" I don't think I could eviscerate any amphibian without serious upper gastric disturbances. Maybe in 9 months or so...(Oh, but that does bring up another topic. Heather and I were discussing the possibility of sending Laurie on an ALL EXPENSES PAID STUFFED FROG HUNTING TRIP!! So, since obviously neither one of US wants to shell out any bucks for this, we thought we'd give our GENEROUS subscribers the opportunity to contribute to THE FUND TO SEND LAURIE TO TIAJUANA TO LOOK FOR STUFFED FROGS!!! Those of you EAGER to participate should send their contributions to Heather. We figure we should scrape up the money right around mid-August, so Laurie "Almost Ready To Pop" Jensen can enjoy beautiful downtown T.J. in all of its sweltering glory! Please mark envelopes "TFTSLTTJTLSF" - well, then again, maybe not... We'll be sure to PUNBLISH the names of all of those GENEROUS enough to contribute! Yes, we'll find out who Laurie's friends REALLY are!!!)

Got some fellow frog fanciers...(sent in from Laura Doll. Seems the "slimy creatures of the night" fascination runs deep in this family.) This is Laura's sister and a guy and a stuffed frog:

Heather received a note from a certain T.W. - she sent us a story that came over the Associated Press wire machine..."That I thought would be of interest to the Model Rag's elite group of readers."

MICHAEL COLVIN IS NOT JUST A MEMBER OF BRITAIN'S PARLIAMENT. HE ALSO HAS AN ACQUAINTANCE WHO RAISES FROGS FOR A LIVING.

O-K. LET'S GET THEM OVER WITH NOW.

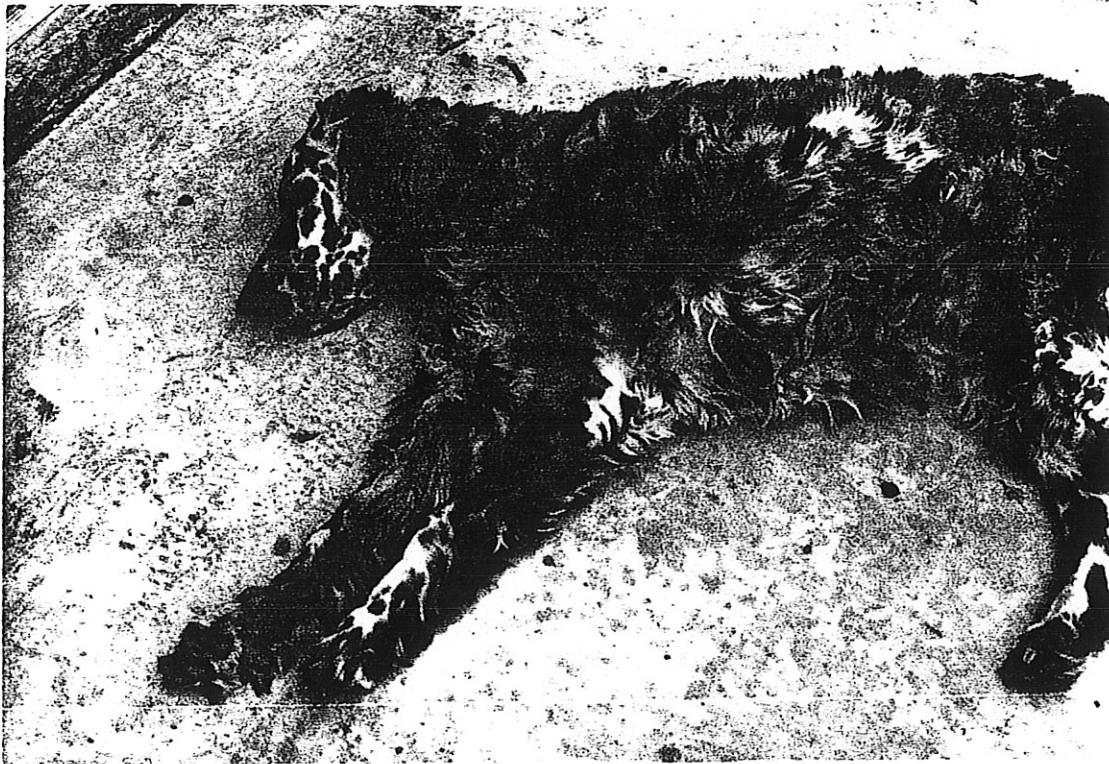

BUSINESS KEEPS HIM HOPPING. IT IS A RIBBETING OCCUPATION. FEEDING FROGS MEANS TIME FLIES, AND IT IS A CASE OF HUMAN BEING MEETING AMPHI-BEIN'.

NOW, TO THE NEWS: COLVIN HAS A COMPLAINT ABOUT A BILL BEFORE PARLIAMENT THAT WOULD GIVE TAX BREAKS TO LIVESTOCK GROWERS. THE TROUBLE, HE SAYS, IS THAT IT DEFINES LIVESTOCK IN TERMS OF MAMMALS AND BIRDS.

COLVIN'S ACQUAINTANCE, WHO RAISES AMPHIBIANS, IS OUT OF LUCK. COLVIN WOULD LIKE A CHANGE IN THE LAW.

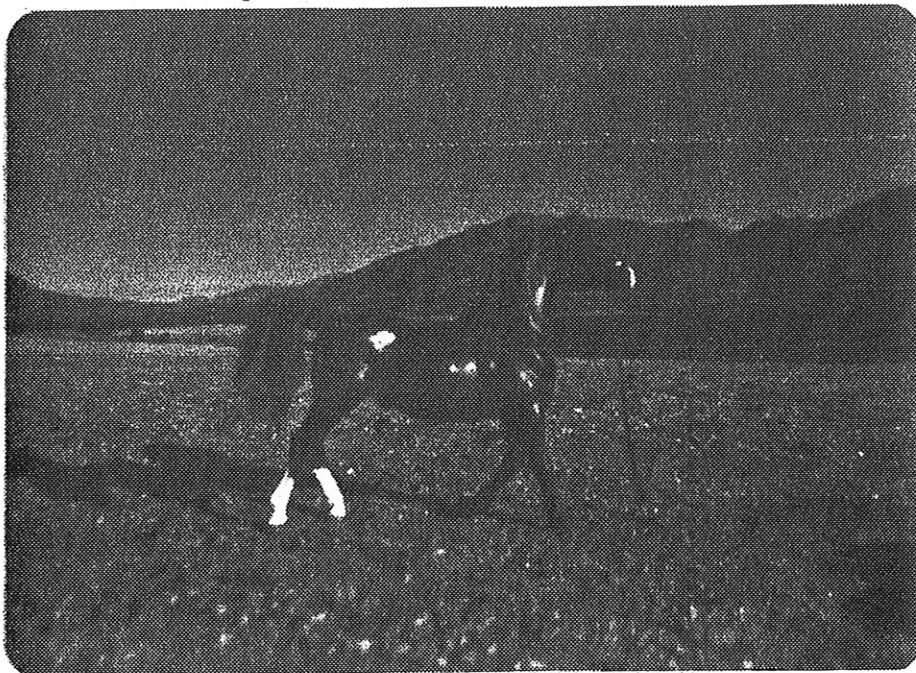

HE HOPES HIS FELLOW LAWMAKERS WILL HOP TO IT.

She also sent us a pic for the "Weird Pet Contest" (see next page). His name is "Watson", who is, she writes, "...a reformed model horse-eater. Now he sticks to the dog food we give him and all the cat food he can steal. Watson caused the demise of several repainted Breyers when he was a puppy...fortunately he never tried to tackle an Hagen-Renaker!

Also, a M.D. from Eureka (didn't want to embarrass you, Mair!) writes, "I wanted to enter the WEIRD PET contest but there were no rules listed in the RAG." Silly rabbit - rules are for NORMAL contests - given the people with whom you are dealing, what conclusions would YOU make?

Hey, we have a bow-wow this month by Holly Woodard! Holly says, "The best part about this picture is the background." See for yourself:

She adds, "I hope this will keep you entertained for a while." Ha, Ha! I'm constantly being entertained by all you Rag Readers! Thanks for the pic, Holly!
Time to bring this to a close with my "Quote to Remember..." "A dog is a dog except when he is facing you. Then he is Mr. Dog." Bye! Laurie

BUYER BEWARE!

Have you ever been approached to buy a highly desirable model at a cut rate price...maybe a deal too good to be true? In all probability, it IS too good to be true. The fact is, more and more unscrupulous people are making their mark on the model horse world. This article is meant to educate the buyer & seller of potential problems.

ORIGINAL FINISH MODELS: Everyone has his or her own opinion on the terms "perfect", "excellent", "fair", "good", etc. "Mint" condition may or may not mean the same to different people. It should be used in describing a model as it came from the factory, with additions to details as box rub on hindquarter, nose, ear tips, etc. We all know the perfect model is hard to come by. Keep in mind that rubs do occur on new models during shipment from factory to dealers, and dealers to buyers. The new tie-wrap system of Breyer securing produced unwanted rubs on the banded legs. This is not a cause for return however, either to dealer nor factory, so keep this in mind. If you are buying mail order & want to lessen the chance of more rubs, you can ask the seller to unwrap from the original box and pad the model before shipment. Most sellers will accommodate you with this request. If you are selling, please try to be as accurate as possible when detailing condition, ie. pinhead sized rub right hind at stifle. Also, whether or not live show quality, or photo show quality. Spell out your terms for returns. If you have a money back if not satisfied clause or not. Please be honest. If the sale is due to a hurried need for money, the price may be cheaper than normal to insure a quick sale, but a return may not be available.

REPAINTS: Maybe you only collect from "known" quality artists. Remember, not all of a person's work is of the same quality. A person who has had a long career of repainting/remaking had to have learned the tricks of the trade somewhere. If you are buying a second hand repaint, not from the artist, you may be buying an early failure. Photos showing good closeups of finish and detail before the sale is actually made will eliminate most problems. Don't go by show photos however, as they were probably done when the horse was first done. Live shows and rough handling afterwards adds to the scratches and flaws in the present horse. Ask for current photos. If a person is asking a high price for the model, this isn't too much to ask for. Also, ask about returns before purchasing, and who is expected to pay shipping costs. Normally, the buyer pays all shipping charges to & from. Also, ask if the piece is signed by the artist. Many horses have been sold as being from one person, when they were actually not. If the value of the horse is due to it being a known artist, ask about having the fact verified by the artist.

TEST COLORS/SPECIAL RUNS: Confusion arises in the terms "test" & "special". A test color is a FACTORY AUTHORIZED production of a color, normally only 1 is produced of the pattern/color. Most do not get in the hands of the public. Most of the true test colors escaped from Breyer in the 1970's, when factory employees took home the extras. Many unauthorized "tests" escaped via different routes while in Chicago. These were not limited to 1 piece and were generally done on factory "seconds", or rejects. The value therefor, is secondary to a true test color. Also, there are limited release "test" colors, such as the palomino Adios available in a gift set...5 pieces escaped to dealers before the set was dropped. These are solid faced, and not to be confused with the special run ones.

Actually, the only confusion on special runs are the duplicate special runs. The special runs made are actually all different. The special run Clydesdale stallion in dapple grey was actually made 3 times.. first as a regular issue horse in the 60's and in gloss, the '70's issue in a brighter colored matte, and the current special available in a softer grey matte. Specify dates when selling special runs that were multiple issued. They are the buckskin Lady Phase (solid faced in the VaLes 1970s run, bald faced in the catalog run of 1985 or 86), the dapple grey Running Mare & foal; Dapple grey Belgian; Black Belgian; dapple grey Cantering Welsh in 2 versions of braid colors; and a few others.

LOOK-ALIKE REPAINTS: This coined term is actually one of my own. It describes a repainted Breyer done in the style & patterns used by the factory. Each model is stripped of all color and airbrushed back into other Breyer colors not found naturally on the model. I can only speak for myself when talking about these type of horses. Each BHR repaint is signed "BHR" between the hind legs. About 4 years ago, 6 pieces were given to friends unsigned...all pieces have been returned to me since then for signing. This is ONLY on look alike pieces, not on realistic type paint jobs. I can state that I do not "fake" paint jobs that I sell to others of actual production models, but only of paint jobs not knowingly produced on the mold. Such as a decorator colored Clydesdale stallion, buckskin San Domingo, alabaster Grazing Mare.

Now then, the main reason for this article is to protect YOU, the buyer, from the fakes. It has come to light that there are certain people faking paint jobs on actual production models. In further questioning of collectors, we have come across the following offered; glossy bay Fighting Stallion (not produced gloss); Glossy bay running Mare & foal (not produced), and a few others easily faked. This is just spraying gloss over a matte model. Very easy to do, so please beware of this. The smell of the gloss is a giveaway to a faked one of these.

The other fakes are actually more elaborate. The case that has come to my attention is a Decorator Gold Charm (solid gold) Fighting Stallion. This was very cleverly done, and if a person did not have a real one to compare with, would probably never suspect it. First of all... no Decorator has the USA stamp. This one did. The matte alabaster model was used, with the grey hoof paint removed with nail polish remover...a fact realized by the glossy appearance and shiney finish. The bottom of the hind hooves still had grey overspray on them. The seams had been melted by the nail polish remover, too clean to be from the factory. Also, the pink hooves needed for a real one hadn't been added. The coloring was too bright colored...like Testor's gold metallic...too bright to match a Breyer. Also, again the smell gave it away... like Krylon gloss...anyone working with this knows the smell. The masking of the mane/tail was too crisp. Breyer used clamp on masks for this, thus, the edges are sometimes leaked under, to produce a faded edge. This model was "offered" to the buyer for approx. $150.00... way under the going price of $200-500.00! The "seller" needed the money quickly was the story. The horse was traded thru 3 knowledgeable Breyer collectors before it was identified as a fake. This is a serious problem. If you have any doubts about the authenticity of a horse, ask for an evaluation by a third party. If the seller balks at this, proceed at your own risk. We don't need these things to happen in our hobby. It is important that these matters be reported. The best recourse is to contact the editors of magazines, who can refuse publication of ads until the situation is remedied. Public blacklisting is cause for liable cases, so do not ask the editor to do this.

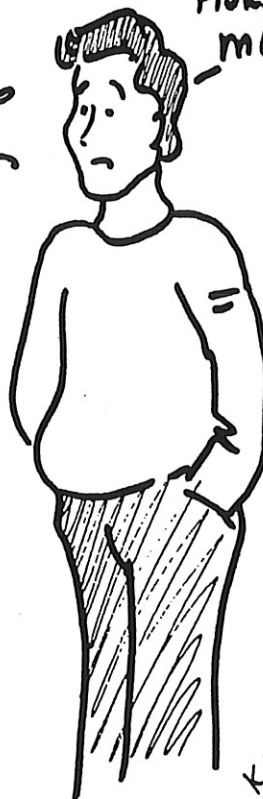

I hope that this has helped you in some way to better understand the buying and selling of your horses. Also, if buying an expensive horse from a person not known to you, ask for it to be sent COD. The seller is insured to get her money and the buyer to getting her horse. Too many bounced checks from buyers has caused the need for holding out of state checks, but what about the buyer? COD is a cheap solution to this. Happy collecting.

THE UNKNOWN COLUMN
is now, from this date forward, to be known as

CHEAP THRILLS

edited/written by Gale Good, 1359 Sherrill St., Anaheim, CA 92804

The winner of the Name-the-Column Contest is Shirley Wyatt. She not only came up with the winning name but also the second place runner-up. So she is entitled to two prizes and will be notified in the next two weeks as to which models she may chose from. A big Thank You to everyone who entered. It's been fun reading all your crazy, and creative, ideas. Next issue I hope to have a logo designed for the column featuring the new name.

Next on the agenda is write-ups. It has been pointed out to me that I have been remissed in placing my address on the column so that future participants may write to me. Sorry about that, Chief. I promise to do better.

Because I just held my first live show (a lot of hard work but loads of fun, too), there was a massive clean-up of the patio, house and horse room. The horse room is where I keep all my mail. Unfortunately, some of the mail (including other write-ups and bills) have either disappeared or been misplaced (maybe permanently). If you've sent something and it hasn't appeared yet, please send it again and accept my apologies.

If you're in the area for the Western Regional Congress '88 show in May, be sure to stop in and chat. I have been drafted to judge Original Finish Novice classes. No, really, I enjoy doing it. (You can stop twisting my arm, Laurie. Just kidding.) And if any one wants a grand tour of my horse room, they're welcome. Just let me know a head of time.

On to the good stuff:

At my show, Cori McGraw (I hope I spelled that right) mentioned that she had found a glossy charcoal mustang with eyewhites at a local antique store. This store is frequented by several other model horse collectors and was thought to be tapped out. Goes to show that you should periodically check out the old haunts because new merchandise may come in at any time.

S.L. found not one but TWO Breyer woodgrain longhorns. This particular finish/mold has been hard to locate in the pass. Maybe this is an indication that more will show up.

Seems that Just About Horses is going to FIVE issues a year! But, sadly, that means an increase in subscriptions - now $5.00 for renewals, $7.50 for new subscriptions.

We were unable to get enough Hagen-Renaker Miniatures Spring 1988 color flyers to enclose with every TMR this time. We got about 30 flyers for Spring 1988, and 30 for 1987. If you would like one, please send an SASE to Heather. First come, first served! We hope to have flyers for Fall 1988 in the June/July edition.

And speaking of H-R Minis.....they are supposed to be bringing out a new series of mini HORSES!! They will be patterned after the "Postage Stamp" horses, featuring 4 horses and 1 foal!! Appears that some of our sources already have them!!!

News from the Harland front!! Kathleen Moody, or Elite Decorations has been asked by Harland to sculpt 3 prototype models for their 1988/89 line - Arab, Friesian, & Shire! Be on the lookout, as Kathleen does superior work! We'd also like to thank Kathleen for the wonderful cartoons that she sent for us to use! We appreciate it!

Renee DeVore wrote in to remind us all about the increased postal rates. She said to remind photo showers to enclose that extra postage necessary, as it is not the show-holder's responsibility to do so. First class is now $.25; each additional ounce is $.20; postcards are $.15

Your Horse Source has told us that due to production problems with the new "John Henry" model, he is not expected until JULY!! But---they did just get in "Breezing Dixie!"

Oops! Looks like the other half of the Wells Model Finding Team got lucky! It seems that Ms. Heather was browsing through an antique store and noticed a ceramic lying foal. She looked at it, but decided it wasn't a Hagen, so passed it up. Then, a couple of days later, her mother (in-law?) brought by a whole bag full of horses for Heather - including the little lying foal. She had gone to the store and bought the lot of them. Heather thanked her and brought the horses with her when she went to see Gale Good. Gale about had a fit when Heather pulled a HAGEN-RENAKER CLOVER out of the bag!!!! Then she really had a fit when Heather told her she had already passed it up 'cause she didn't think it was real!!
